

Hardworking parents... during this unusual year, I want to do all I can to help you! Parenting is the hardest job already, and now you are also teachers (and definitely not by choice for most of you).

So, I want to help, and I also want to make sure Growing Writers is the right choice for you. Here are a few things for busy parent-teachers to consider before purchasing Growing Writers for homeschooling!

- Growing Writers isn't a workbook like you would buy for your kids to dabble in on their own. You will need to take 5-15 minutes (depending on the lesson and your child's ability level) to present each lesson before your kids do the workbook pages.
- Growing Writers requires some toughness about high standards, in order to really be effective. This is easier for most kids in a classroom setting than at home. I will be putting out some blog posts in August about how to get the best results, especially if you have kids who tend to "fight you" when you are in the teacher role. I really encourage you to go to the website and read these blog posts before getting started. I will be posting on August 10, 17, and 24.
- It is very motivating for kids to be able to share their writing with others. This is a big part of the program in the classroom. Your kids will be more motivated to write if they can share their writing with friends, family, neighbors, etc. Plan to work in some sharing time during each week.

If you feel that Growing Writers is a good choice with these things in mind, I am more than happy to give you a 25% discount.

Teacher's Guides for each level will be $71.25. This includes a set of master copies for each workbook.

Extra sets of workbooks will be $15 each.

To get this discount, send me an email through the website and I will bill you through PayPal.
